Guided Vacations are normally conducted by a tour director who takes care of everything from beginning to end. They are typically conducted by motorcoach to accommodate a larger number of guests, usually from 40 to 50 participants.

Advantages include:
- No need to drive or deal with rental cars
- Free meals at transfers to/from the airport, sightseeing admissions and hotels are typically included
- Quicker pace to cover more countries and sights
- Onsite Tour Director to ensure the trip proceeds on schedule and without problems
- Guide services are often provided
- May include some or all meals

Small Group Vacations are similar to Guided Vacations, but on a more intimate scale—usually less than 20 participants. They are ideal for guests who desire a tour experience with more time to explore certain aspects and sights in more detail as well as more personalized attention.

Advantages include:
- No need to drive or deal with rental cars
- Free meals at transfers to/from the airport, sightseeing admissions and hotels are typically included
- Slower pace to allow for in-depth exploration
- Local representative available 24/7 to provide a more personalized travel experience
- Local guide services often provided
- May include some or all meals

Independent Travel Vacations do not include a tour director or set routine of daily activities, however a local host is usually available to suggest local sights of interest. A few meals and some sightseeing may be included, but the emphasis is on free time to explore on your own. The duration of the trip is often determined by the guest.

Advantages include:
- Itineraries created to accommodate a guest’s interests
- Move at your own pace—stop at sights you desire and spend as long as you like
- Choice of accommodations in a variety of budgets and tastes including hotel, B&B and full-board as well as manor and castle stays
- Variety of transportation options available including train, ferry, car rental (self-drive) and private chauffeur
